Mr. Davis' Meeting.

Rev. Pat H. Davis is being heard by great crowds at the Methodist church, especially at night meetings. The evangelist is preaching a series of strong sermons and his appeals to the unconverted are fervid and earnest. The singing is a most important feature. A choir of children has been added, the children occupying a corner to themselves. They render solos, duets and quartettes just like the regular choir. The meeting will take on added interest tomorrow, as there will be special meetings held.

CERULEAN IN NEW HANDS

Popular Watering Place Sold
To The Wilhelm Hotel
Company.

WILL DAM HORSE CREEK

And Make Many Other Changes
To Beautify The Grounds.

Thos O. Turner has sold the Cerulean Springs Hotel property to the Wilhelm Hotel Co., of Paducah, which includes the hotel, the annex and sundry other buildings, and the fifty-acre park surrounding the hotel. The deed of conveyance was executed Tuesday, and the new owners took possession March 1.

Mr. Jas. E. Wilhelm, of Paducah, is President of the purchasing company and in an interview stated to a News-Democrat reporter that his company had been negotiating for some time for the property, and now having acquired it, that it was their intention to make it one of the most popular resorts in the state. No extensive improvements are contemplated, at this time, for the reason that the company will beautify the condition, and make all of the rooms well-furnished and home-like in every respect. Mr. Wilhelm, says, however, that the company will beautify the grounds in many respects, add a tennis court and several other features for the entertainment of guests, and also convert the stream that flows for a mile through the park into an ideal boating, fishing and bathing stream. The local company recognizes the fact that while over one-half of the visitors to Cerulean Springs are attracted there by the virtue of the sulphur and iron

HEALTH OFFICER

Takes Steps To Remove Nuisances Along River Bank.

Dr. J. W. Harned, Health Officer, has served notices on all persons who have sources of filth located on the river banks, that drain into the channel, that such must be removed to locations that will not contaminate the stream. Everything is being gotten in shape to close the flood gate early next week and fill the river with water for boating and bathing purposes next summer. People along the banks are already cleaning up their lots and everybody is taking an interest in the new source of pleasure in store for the people.

waters in the park, that quite a number of the patrons go there for rest, recreation and social pleasures, and the latter feature will receive such attention as will make Cerulean Springs the social storm center, during the summer months, for the people of Paducah, Princeton, Cadiz, Hopkinsville, Clarksville and other cities in this section.

Cerulean Springs has an interesting history, and as a health and pleasure resort it has existed for ninety five years. Every one who has ever been to Cerulean Springs, pronounces it an ideal spot for health seeking and reputation fully maintained. It is situated on a high hill and surrounded by a beautiful natural park that ends at an ever flowing stream. For a half-century the hotel has been famous for serving daily fried chicken in the old-fashioned Kentucky style. Under the new management several incubators will be installed and its time-honored reputation fully maintained.

During the summer months Mr. Wilhelm will give personal supervision to affairs at Cerulean Springs. Last year his company operated, under lease, the Arcadia properties at Dawson Springs, and it is said to have been the most successful year, both financially and socially, in the history of that most popular place. As a former newspaper publisher, Mr. Wilhelm understands the value of advertising in attracting the public, and as a constant traveller he appreciates what hotel guests expect, and as a consequence, the twenty-five hundred guests at the Arcadia last year, returned home pleased with their sojourn at the springs. With such a reputation, the new owners of Cerulean Springs can but add to its popularity as a summer.

ADVANCE AS SEASON ENDS

Heavy Sales This Week Attracted By The Good
Prices Paid.

The tobacco market continues to advance and prices are moved up this week about fifty cents all along the line. As the supply decreases, the demand increases and the early buyers will make a pot of money. The eager buyers are not waiting for the weed to come to town but are going to the barns and paying $8.50, $9.50, $10.50 and $11.50 around.

Sales on the loose floors during the week amounted to about 350,000 pounds. The demand was strong and bidding was spirited on everything offered. Common and medium grades were desired especially, and brought excellent prices.

The division of the big companies and the entrance of new buyers in the market has been one of the supposed causes of the activity.

The hoghead market is still doing nothing, though there has been inquiry during the last week from a number of foreign buyers, both as to old and new crop, and active movement in this branch is expected without delay. Prices range from $6.50 to $9 for lugs and from $9 to $16 for leaf. All over the black patch plant land is being prepared for the next crop, which promises to be a large one, if labor and weather conditions are at all favorable.

Quotations on the open market are as follows:

Trash.....	$5.00 to $5.50
Low lugs.....	5.00 to 6.00
Common lugs.....	6.00 to 7.00
Medium lugs.....	7.00 to 8.00

D. G. EDWARDS

Undergoes Operation For Advanced Appendicitis.

Mr. D. G. Edwards, manager of the Home Telephone Co., was operated upon Thursday for appendicitis by a surgeon from Nashville, at his room in the residence of Mr. R. T. Stowe. A very bad condition was found and he was in a most critical state. The appendix was almost entirely gone and an abscess had formed from the decayed matter. Two operations were necessary and first indications were that the patient could not survive the night.

He rallied, however, at ten o'clock and grew better and yesterday his condition was more hopeful.

Good lugs.....	8.00 to 8.75
Common leaf.....	7.00 to 8.50
Medium leaf.....	9.00 to 10.00
Good leaf.....	10.00 to 11.50
Fine leaf.....	11.50 to 13.50

INITIATION TO BE PUT ON

Elks' Show March 4th To Be Crowd-Drawer.

The big "Social Session Show" that the Frankfort Elks will put on at the Capital Theatre on Monday night, March 4th, promises to be one of the most interesting things of the season. Besides the attractive musical program that has been arranged, the members of the Frankfort Lodge of Elks will put on a burlesque initiation, which will include all the main features of the Elks' initiation that was used by the Elks in actual initiations up to last year. This burlesque part of the Elks' real initiation is one of the things that made the Elks famous all over the country, and helped to increase the membership to over 300,000.

Those who never saw a funny initiation, and want to see what the Elks really did to their new members, should not miss the chance of their lives next Monday night March 4th. It will be worth going miles to see. There has been some objection in some quarters to the Elks making this public exhibition of what their initiation used to be, but the stunt will be pulled off, notwithstanding. —News Democrat.

Secretary Knox made his first speech in Panama Wednesday. This speech, while delivered before the acting President of Panama, Senor R. Rodolfo Chiaria, was in reality addressed to all the countries he will visit and include an explanation of the attitude of the United States towards South and Central America. Mr. Knox said the President believed the early completion of the canal should mark the beginning of closer relations between the United States and all Latin-Americas; that the purpose of the United States towards all the American republics was to live in amity and essential harmony, and that the United States desired more peace, more prosperity more happiness and more security in their national lives. He declared the United States craved neither sovereignty nor territory in Latin-America.

Caught Stealing a Bath.

Fort Worth, Tex., Mar. 1—Chief of Police Renfro and three policemen were called to a barbershop late last night to arrest burglars. With drawn revolvers they opened the door of a bathroom where the "burglars" were hiding and were amazed to find two pretty young women, entirely nude, hatching in the tub. Feminine screams startled passers-by. The two girls threw water into the Chief's face, who beat a retreat. Later he arrested them for stealing a bath. They gave their names as Miss Kathryn Reid and Mrs. Jessie Hoover. They were fined $10, but the chief today remitted the fines, saying the joke was on himself.

THE THRICE-A-WEEK EDITION OF THE NEW YORK WORLD

Practically a Daily at the Price of a Weekly.

No other Newspaper in the world gives so much at so low a price.

The great Presidential campaign will soon begin and you will want the news accurately and promptly. The World long since established a record for impartiality, and anybody can afford its Thrice-a-Week edition, which comes every other day in the week, except Sunday. It will be of particular value to you now. The Thrice-a-Week World also abounds in other strong features: serial stories, humor, markets, cartoons; in fact, everything that is to be found in a first-class daily.

THE THRICE A WEEK WORLD'S regular subscription price is only $1.00 per year, and this pays for 156 papers. We offer this unequalled newspaper and the Hopkinsville Kentuckian together for one year for $2.65. The regular subscription price of the Kentuckian is $3.00.

She Stayed in Bed.

Ingram, Texas.—"Ever since I became a woman," writes Mrs. E. M. Evans, of this place, "I suffered from womanly troubles. Last fall, I got so bad, I had to stay in bed for nearly a week every month. Since I have taken Cardui, I feel better than I have for years." You can rely on Cardui. It acts on the womanly organs and helps the system to regain its normal state of health in a natural way. Prepared especially for women, it prevents womanly pains by acting on the cause, and builds up womanly strength in a natural way. Purely vegetable. Mild, but certain in action. Try it.

A Grateful Father.

Galveston, Texas, Mar. 1.—For saving the 4-year-old daughter of P. Ambrose of Portland in a train wreck six years ago, James Montgomery. A section hand on the Southern Pacific, living near El Paso, was left 10,000 acres of land in Pecos county, by the will of Ambrose, who died recently. Ambrose and family were en route to California when the accident occurred and Montgomery rescued the girl and her father through a car window.

Sermons and Impressions.

In listening to a sermon or other address, there is this to be said: The next day, or perhaps the next hour, one cannot accurately report a single thing that is said. One may give an impression, in a very imperfect way that the whole discourse has made upon him, but as to any definite instruction, that is almost universally lacking.

A man will say: "That was a fine sermon," but to quote a line from it accurately is quite impossible. That has been our experience. We will feel the glow of an idea, maybe, but just what that idea is we cannot say. Perhaps it is not necessary. Perhaps it is well enough to feel only the influence of what was said.

Still, one should learn something definite from every sermon he hears. There is never a sermon that has not something in it worth remembering. One need not agree with it altogether, but if it is a sentence or a thought that has a beauty, a harmony, an appeal in it, it is worth calling to mind next day.—Ohio State Journal.

Named After Literary Men.

The death of Alfred Tennyson Dickens recalls the great novelists' penchant for naming his children after distinguished literary men and particularly after his contemporaries.

His eldest son, born in 1837, he christened after himself, Charles Culliford Boz; his first daughter he named simply Mary; the second daughter, Kate Macready; the second son, born in 1841, Walter Landor; the third, born in 1844, Francis Jeffrey; the fourth, Alfred Tennyson; the fifth, Sydney Smith; the sixth, Henry Fielding; and the seventh, Edward Bulwer Lytton. Of these only Henry Fielding, who, like his namesake follows the law, now survives. One wonders somewhat why he passed over his great friend, John Forster, and his greatest contemporary, Thackeray.

Surgeon's Idea.

"Modern surgery has made great advances."
"But you can't make a crooked man straight."
"Oh, I don't know."
"What do you mean?"
"You can take away so much of his money that he will have to keep straight."

A Lead Pencil Danger.

In the United States the danger of putting pencils in the mouth has long been recognized, and in all the schools every precaution is taken to prevent the interchange of pencils as well as the moistening of them with the lips. A great many children and even their elders, who ought to know better, persist in putting pencils in their mouth regardless of the risk they run.

CHESTNUT LODGE

By A. Maria Crawford

(Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press)

"I am so glad," said Polly Moore, "that I came a day before your other guests, Aunt Phoebe. It gives me an opportunity to have a comfortable talk with you."

"Bob Gaines is coming this afternoon for the same reason. If my headache doesn't get better, I will be compelled to leave you two to entertain each other."

"Bob Gaines of all people! I believe I will catch your headache," moaned Polly. "Isn't it too bad that we dislike each other when you love us both and want to pair us off like cooling doves?"

"There is one thing that puzzles me, Polly. You have never seen Bob, he has never caught a glimpse of you, yet you claim that hate boils in your hearts. It isn't reasonable—mere prejudice! Somebody carried tales, yet neither of you will give the culprit away."

Polly glanced up at her Aunt Phoebe with mischief lurking in her blue eyes. "What will you give me to make this young person change his opinion of me? Chestnut lodge?" "That's not fair, Polly. I have willed you everything I have except this house and grounds. I promised it to Bob when he was thirty and I can't go back on my promise. The fact of the matter is that I have had it attended to legally. Bob gets the place next year."

"This house is the only thing in the world that I actually want. Look at these high ceilings, this wainscoting, the beautiful old mahogany and rosewood furniture, the rugs—all to go to a man that I despise! Why do you love him so, Aunt Phoebe? He isn't related in any way and I am your own sister's child."

Aunt Phoebe sat looking pensively in the fire where the big logs were blazing. Her face, crowned with its soft white hair, appeared singularly youthful and there was a reminiscent tenderness in her eyes.

"Polly," she said, "I am going to tell you why I love Bob Gaines and why I expect to give to him this house next year. He will be thirty then. His father courted me in this very room. I loved him, but I was a foolish young thing and flirted with everybody. You remind me of what I was in those days. He said that if I loved him I must give up all my other admirers. We quarreled about it and—he married Bob's mother."

"Oh, Aunt Phoebe dear, I didn't dream of anything like that. How often I must have hurt you! How true you have been through all these long, lonely years—true just to a memory. That," said Polly softly, her arms tight about the straight, aristocratic old figure, "this is what I call love! Everything in this room is suddenly fragrant with romance."

Miss Phoebe smiled at the eager young face so near her own. "Be kind to Bob when he comes. It is almost dark now, and a good night's sleep is what I need. My headache is really severe."

Polly changed her traveling dress for a filmy little gown that looked as if it had been made of moonlight. The diamonds on her breast gleamed like stars in a summer sky. Why did she feel so antagonistic to Bob Gaines? She sat musing in the great chair that Miss Phoebe always occupied when she was downstairs. It was all because of a chance remark of the man's, made soon after the announcement that Polly Moore would inherit all her Aunt Phoebe's estate, that is, everything except Chestnut Lodge, the beautiful stone house built on a farm. Edith Tyson had told Polly what Bob Gaines was reputed to have said at his club.

"I suppose people will say that I ought to hunt up Polly Moore and marry her to get the rest of Miss Phoebe's wealth, but no spoiled flirt for me."

"Well," Polly had answered when Edith had repeated the remark, "the next time you see that young man please say that I would rather be an old maid than to marry an idle, red-headed Irishman. Aunt Phoebe told me his hair was red."

The message had been promptly delivered, and Polly and Bob had thereafter avoided each other.

When James switched on the lights in the hall Polly saw a good looking stranger standing there, a suitcase beside him. His hair, she noticed with a start of surprise, was not red, but brown.

When he had made himself presentable and entered the drawing room, Polly extended her hand cordially.

"At last we meet, Mr. Gaines. I am Polly Moore, as you probably know."

"One of the maids tells me that your aunt is indisposed. I am very sorry, but at the same time a little glad for it gives me a nice long evening with you."

Polly exerted all her efforts to charm the man. She remembered the sweet story of her Aunt Phoebe's romance and her heart was warm for this young fellow who might have been Miss Phoebe's own son. The man himself seemed strangely ill at ease, but Polly attributed it to the fact of their hitherto violent hatred.

"That cabinet over there of curios is worth a small fortune," he said, indicating a quaint hand-carved piece of furniture. "That amethyst neck lace that belonged to some queen, I believe, is very valuable."

"Yes, indeed. Are you interested in Aunt Phoebe's collection? I think that she is very foolish to leave such things here even if she does have a sort of double lock, don't you?"

"Yes, but I suppose she trusts her servants."

Polly excused herself presently. She wanted to run upstairs and ask about Aunt Phoebe before dinner, she said. When she reached the landing she heard a strange noise and went quickly down again thinking that a log had fallen from the fire and that she could help Bob put it back in place.

What she saw fairly paralyzed her. For a woman, she thought very quickly, and reached up to get a loaded pistol that Aunt Phoebe always kept on a high stand in the hall. Then she covered the man where he knelt before the famous cabinet slipping the jeweled necklace in his pocket.

"Hands up! I think," she said, coolly, "that I can shoot pretty straight. To think that you would steal from Aunt Phoebe!"

The man cowered before the look in her face. "It's all a joke," he whimpered just as the door bell rang.

When Polly heard James enter the hall she spoke to him quietly, without taking her eyes from the burglar. "Hurry up, James, and see who is there. Be careful. Then come here."

"Well, hello, James. How's Aunt Phoebe? Tell her Bob's here," Polly heard a deep voice say. "What the devil does this mean?"

"Come and help me. I have caught a gentleman thief."

It took very little time for Bob and James to replace the valuables and tie their prisoner hand and foot. Then James and a big burly fellow from the stables stood guard over him in a locked room until the sheriff could arrive.

Phoebe was shaking before the fire when Bob went back to her. He handed her a glass of wine.

"I—I can't hold it," sobbed Polly.

"I am scared to death."

"After you have been so brave? Here, I'll hold it. Drink it all."

But Polly's coolness had disappeared. "I—I can't, I tell you. Why, he could have murdered me and I—I talked to him about everything. Oh!" wailed Polly, "I'll never get over this—never!"

Bob put his strong, steady arms around her and held the wine to her mouth.

"Poor little girl!" he said soothingly. "Brace up. That was the bravest thing I ever saw a girl do. Nice scheme of that thief's. One of the maids was a confederate and she put him on to my coming and Aunt Phoebe's headache. He is certainly a bold, bad man. I admire you for what you did, even if you don't like red heads."

Polly glanced up where the fire-light showed on Bob's hair.

"When, when I said that," she stammered, "I—I didn't know it was such a beautiful red."

Two hours later Miss Phoebe, feeling better, came into the room softly and saw two figures before the dancing flames. Polly's fair curls rested perilously near the auburn locks of her favorite.

"This doesn't look exactly like hatred," she declared.

"It isn't," laughed Bob. "It's a case of old-fashioned love. Polly is going to marry me."

"You watch her, Bob," cautioned Miss Phoebe, "Polly is marrying you for this house."

"That's all right," agreed Bob cheerfully. "I don't care how, why or what her reasons may be, just so she marries me."

Polly helped Miss Phoebe to her big chair. "It had to be, Aunt Phoebe," she whispered, "I am the spirit of your love. Bob is the spirit of his father's. The memories in this room just reached out and drew our hearts together."

SOLVED PROBLEM OF SPEED

Engineer's Happy Thought Enabled Lusitania to Obtain Requirements Called For.

A year ago I crossed the ocean with Sir William White, the expert employed by the British government in building the fast vessels of their navy. We were on the Lusitania and he told me the story of that steamship. He was called in as counselor by the builders. When the boat was built, it was figured out that she should make twenty-three or twenty-four knots an hour. As a matter of fact, they could not get her above twenty-two knots, no matter how hard they drove the engines or how much coal they burned.

He instituted a series of experiments, and it finally occurred to him that it was useless to try to drive the engines harder. The propellers, driven beyond a certain speed, beat up the water so rapidly that the air united with the water, with the effect that the propellers found no corresponding resistance. The water was too light. It was as when a man pushes his feet against a pillow. It occurred to him to enlarge the blades of the propeller. When he added 25 per cent to the area of the blade, raising it from eighty to a hundred feet, at once the boat shot ahead up to the estimated speed.—Rev. H. A. Stimson in the Missionary Herald.

THREE THINGS YOU NEED..

First—

"Kentuckian"

A virile, new newspaper with the interest of the entire community at heart. Issues of the day are handled without fear or favor. You will find in this paper an up-to-date department for each member of the family. Clean, honest, straightforward—it is a paper; family should not be without.

Second—

Technical World Magazine

Is the one magazine that not only entertains in a fascinating manner, but which also instructs. It is the magazine for the busy business man, or for the person who wants to lull away a summer's afternoon, and be agreeably informed at the same time. It is profusely illustrated, and tells in a simple and interesting way of the discoveries of scientists, the achievements of inventors, the facts of engineering and exploration, and the opening of every new field of human endeavor. What Jack London says: "I have just chanced upon my first copy of TECHNICAL WORLD MAGAZINE. There isn't anything like it. I want more, and I cannot wait for them to come, so I am sending you herewith check for which please enter my subscription and send me immediately the last two years' back numbers."

Third—

A Fine Atlas

This one is just off the press. This is the year to obtain a new atlas. The 1910 Census has just been completed, this atlas contains the official figures. 128 pages of 3 color maps brought right down to date—every map giving the results of the most recent surveys. All railroads are shown and named and maps of all large cities are included. There are 51 double page maps showing in detail portions of the U. S. and Canada. Dimensions 10" x 13 1/2". Bound in stiff linen—Silver Leaf Title—printed on heavy plate paper. Sells regularly for $3.00. A splendid gift.

ALL THREE
Only $3.80

Special arrangement with Technical World Magazine and the publishers of this Atlas make this offer possible. But it is very strictly limited. You must act immediately.

HAMMOND'S MODERN ATLAS OF THE WORLD

WILD DOGS MENACED PARIS

Serious Situation That Became One of the Worst Features of Reign of Terror.

So many startling events happened from day to day during the Reign of Terror that the apparition of wild dogs in Paris was commonly overlooked. But it was quite natural. The greater part of the grandees, who fled or went into hiding, kept dogs, and very few of them were able to make arrangements for the poor beasts when they left home.

The dogs, abandoned, took to the streets of course, and shortly they began to congregate in two packs, one occupying the Champs Elysees, and one the Bois de Boulogne. Soon they became a public danger. Carlyle pokes fun at Santerre, the brewer, who proposed a law that all dogs should be hanged; he had not noticed the paragraphs in the newspapers telling how people had been attacked in the Champs Elysees.

At length the situation became really grave, as is easily understood when thousands of starving animals have to find subsistence in a starving city. Many of them were wolf hounds, and of powerful fighting breeds. So in September, 1793, drastic measures were taken against the Champs Elysees pack.

Two battalions of the National Guard surrounded the area, leaving a gap toward the Rue Royale, while multitudes of ragamuffins beat the cover. The game was driven up to the Rue Royale to the Place Royale, where troops made a battle of it, firing volleys. Three days consecutively this operation was repeated and more than three thousand dogs lay in the place.

A certain Gaspardin received orders to clear them away, and he, short of means, applied for the Royal equipages. It was a timely jest, greeted with applause. So M. Gaspardin packed the dead dogs neck and heels in the gilded coaches as full as they would hold, and made a state procession through delighted Paris.

HARD ON MRS. PACKER, TOO

Little Mistake in Matter of Tickets Causes No End of Annoyance.

Blueberry was a small and unimportant rural railroad station, and the post of ticket agent was held by Mrs. Nancy Dipple, an energetic woman who lived near the tracks. Travel to and from the town was light, and having little use for a separate office, Mrs. Dipple sold railroad tickets, when they were called for, at her own house, where she kept her stock for safety in a bureau drawer.

Besides selling tickets, Mrs. Dipple "did for" a household of boarders and a shiftless husband. A ticket for town being required one day when the agent's hands were occupied with the mixing of biscuit dough, Mrs. Dipple requested her husband to act as her representative, and he obligingly complied. A little later he appeared in the kitchen with a troubled brow. "Nancy," he asked, anxiously, "was any of the town tickets blue?"

"No—all red," said Nancy. "Well,"—Mr. Dipple rubbed his head with a disturbed look,—"I sold Mrs. Packer a blue ticket, and then afterwards I noticed some red tickets in the drawer, and—"

Modern Appliances for Whaling. The use of the modern whaling cannon in place of the old-fashioned and more picturesque hand harpoon has been familiar for a good many years, but it is probably not widely known that another modern invention has been pressed into service. Compressed air is now pumped into the whale's carcass until it resembles a toy balloon, and the hole filled with oakum, so that the whaler may set the carcass afloat with a buoy to mark it, without danger of its sinking.

In this way time can be saved in starting on the pursuit of other whales which may be in sight.

Heroism of Women.

It is painful to note that few Carnegie medals go to women. One might infer from this that heroism is exclusively a male characteristic, comments the Philadelphia Inquirer. Fortunately, it isn't so. As a fact most women have to be heroes to get through this world at all. They do things right along which would make a man famous. Some of them exhibit constant heroism by living with men who ought to be in jail or in the tomb. But, aside from such considerations, women have done their share in every branch of heroic effort so far as opportunities opened.

Appeal to National Pride.

The Italian wrestler Brugglio was proceeding cautiously, says a writer in the Chicago Evening Post. He was feeling his opponent out, stalling him off with various pokes and not showing that daring in attack that the crowd likes. Most of them were silent, but one adviser, seated far away, kept yelling to him to "take a chance." As this seemed to make no impression with repetition, he shouted finally: "Take a chance, you wop lobster. Columbus took a chance."

Might Not Be Alive.

McMinnville, Tenn.—Mrs. Otie Jett, of this place, writes: "I don't believe I would be living to-day, if it hadn't been for Cardui. I lay in bed for 27 days, and the doctor came every day, but he did me no good. Finally, he advised an operation, but I would not consent, and instead took Cardui. Now I am going about the house, doing my work, and even do my washing. Cardui worked wonders in my case. I am in better health than for five years." Cardui is a strengthening tonic for women. It relieves pain, tones up the nerves, builds strength. Try it. At your druggist's.

MUSHROOMS, GOOD AND BAD

Larger Number of the 6,000 Fungi of America Are Appetizing and Nutritious.

Of the 6,000 fungi of the United States three are poisonous, further three unwholesome, but the larger number of the rest afford as appetizing and nutritious food as man could ask. In the shops cultivated mushrooms bring from 50 cents to $1 a pound. Many of the wild ones are finer flavored and are to be had for the gathering. In the city of Chicago alone 50,000 persons could dine daily on this food for the gourmand without exhausting the supply to be gathered within the municipal limits. Ignorance is costly!

Six bad varieties of the mushroom family prevent the utilization of 6,000 good ones—and yet it is easy to distinguish the poisonous kinds, nor difficult to identify the others. The trouble is that the works treating of the fungi are rare and costly, hence not to be found outside of libraries.

Here is a field for public intervention and some of the states have recognized this. The state of New York has published a volume beautifully illustrated, describing the fungi found growing within its territory. T. C. Clements, state botanist of Minnesota, has issued the fourth volume of "Minnesota Plant Studies," which deals with the mushrooms of that state. He describes over 300 varieties. The three deadly amanitas (phalloid, vernal and fly) are figured and described, so that they could not fail to be recognized by any person of average intelligence.—Journal of Clinical Medicine.

EVIDENCE TO PROVE IT

TO FIGHT SLEEPING SICKNESS.

England and Germany have agreed to co-operate in fighting the sleeping sickness, that mysterious scourge of the native African subjects of both nations. A thorough investigation is to be made into the prevalence of the sleeping sickness in the Gold Coast colony, the Ashanti and Northern Territory protectorates, and Togo. Each government will keep the other informed of the prevalence of the disease in its territory, and will treat native subjects of other powers without charge; but each may impose restrictions on traffic at its frontier, and may prevent suspected sufferers from crossing its border. This arrangement between the two countries will continue at least for three years, and may be renewed at the end of that period.—Youth's Companion.

COLOR BLIND.

"Father," asked little Archie, gravely, "what is color blindness. What does it mean?"

"It means," was papa's reply, "that the people so affected cannot tell one color from another."

"Oh, is that it? Well, the man that drew the maps in my new atlas must have been color blind, for in the map of Europe he's got the Black sea and the White sea painted blue."

Current Comment.

Darrow seems to have slipped up in his own grease.

Taft is claiming Roosevelt's own state of New York.

They've quit calling each other "Teddy" and "Will."

Prospects are brighter for Democratic harmony in Tennessee.

Mr. Wiley denies a report that he is going to resign. Republicans seldom die and never resign.

Eladio Victoria, who was elected on December 1, took the oath Thursday as President of the Republic of Santo Domingo for a term of six years, without being shot at.

There is no likelihood that the shell game will lapse into innocuous desuetude. The Kentucky Senate has passed a bill to protect the musk-shell industry of Kentucky.

Cairo is reminded that Cairo was not in one of the best seasons the Kitty ever had. And it is almost recalled that Paducah had a god team before Levy was ever heard of.

The House committee on Naval Affairs decided on authorizing two new battleships this year, and to demand that the Democratic caucus rescind its declaration against additions to the navy this year.

The Department of justice is investigating the moving-picture business to ascertain if there is a "trust." The inquiry, like many recent Sherman law cases, involves primarily the use of patents.

The report of the expert accountant of the Stanley committee investigating the Steel Trust was submitted alleging the corporation operates in restraint of trade and manipulates prices through the "Gary dinners."

25 Failed.

In spite of a ruling that saved 45 of them, 25 middies bulged and dropped out of the naval academy at Annapolis last month.

Found Dead.

E. T. Scott, of Metrolois, Ill., a brother-in-law of Mrs. E. A. Haile, of Pembroke, was found dead in his bed at a hotel in Pine Bluff, Ark.

Lost Keys.

Bunch of 12 or 15 on ring, 4 of them Yale keys and a T. P. A. tag in Hopkinsville Friday, or on road to Caskey. Return to this office or to L. H. Huggins.

Cut On Sugar.

Although the Democrats of the ways and means committee have pledged themselves to secrecy until the caucus, it is understood that it has been agreed to reduce the sugar duty from $1.90 a hundred to 80 cents.

Old Dan.

The Bowling Green fire department's famous old horse "Dan" died this week, aged 18 years. Hopkinsville also has an "Old Dan" but he has been transferred to the police department, except when needed occasionally as a substitute.

Benefit Day.

Thursday was benefit day at the Princess for McLean College and the crowds were large at every performance. The bill included "The Tale of Two Cities," and although it was seen here last summer it again proved to be a big drawing card. Mr. Bleich's next special feature is "A Blot on the Escutcheon" March 8.

The amount turned over to the Committee by Mr. Bleich for the McLean College fund, from the proceeds of Thursday, was $111.30, which amount he donates to the College with his customary generosity.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

THOSE GORY STUDENT DUELS

Fresh Chicken Blood Made It Easy to Satisfy the Curiosity of Tourists.

Speaking of the bloodless duel which was "fought" last week between Professor Langevin and M. Thery, a newspaper man, a New York physician who studied at Heidelberg, said: "In my day early all duels, except those fought by students, were of the same kind, and just because these were the 'real thing' every American tourist as he came to the old town wanted to see an encounter. 'If you had been here yesterday,' the hotel porter would tell them, 'you might have seen one.' Then he would tell the seeker after scenes of gore: 'Go to the Hirschgasse meeting place tomorrow and you may get a glimpse of a duel.'"

"Bright and early next morning Mr. Tourist and his family went to the place, only to find that they were just too late. The keeper of the place took them to the room where the duel had been fought, and even showed them drops of fresh blood on the zinc floor. Then the party went away satisfied, the keeper got his tip, the coachman got his fee, the hotel porter received his rake-off and the man in charge of the Hirschgasse dueling place sprinkled fresh chicken blood on the zinc floor to be in time for the next party."—New York Tribune.

PIG ATE UP HIS LEDGERS

How Poor Pat, the Australian Saloon Keeper, Lost All His Standing Accounts.

In a small town in Queensland, Australia, an Irishman kept a dinky saloon where the boys would occasionally congregate for a round or two of jollity. There were those among us cattlemen who would sometimes be short of change and would tell Pat to charge up the bill. Often our accounts with him would run for months.

One day two of us went to the saloon, just after having completed a big sale, and we thought we'd square up accounts with the trustful landlord. Informing Pat of our intention, he went into a back room as usual to figure up our standing. In a minute he returned, moaning pitifully, wringing his hands and cursing the fates.

"Me ledgers is all et up," he wailed. "Begorra, I haven't a bit of an account left. The bloody pig has ruined me, so he has."

EAT SEAWEED—AFTER WHILE.

America possesses an association to promote the consumption of seaweed as food. The members maintain that in about twenty years' time the failure of the production of wheat to keep pace with the increase of the world's population will bring us in danger of starvation. They propose to redress the balance of the land by calling into economic existence the sea. It is said that in the Sargasso sea alone sufficient nutritious vegetation flourishes and decays to support all the inhabitants of the United States if it were harvested. Not long ago the association held a banquet at which seaweed was served in all fashions, and the guests thoroughly enjoyed the fare.

IGNORANT PRISONER.

The attorney for the defense: "You see, your honor, my client is a foreigner, who can't speak a word of English. He doesn't understand our laws. He didn't know it was wrong to carry a revolver!"

"Two revolvers and a dirk," corrected the judge.

"Yes. And so, in view of his ignorance, both of our customs and our language, I ask that he be discharged."

"Can't do it," said his honor. "But I'll let him off with a fine of $2."

The ignorant one, across the table to his lawyer, and jerking his thumb toward the judge: "I'll get him some dark night fer that!"

IT MAY BE.

"Why do they call it 'leap year'?" "I think it must be because the available bachelors are so likely to leap like scared fawns whenever an eager-looking maiden is seen approaching."

PERVERSITY.

"Why are the German cures called something-or-other 'bad'?" "Because they're supposed to be."

Hopkinsville, Ky., March 2, 1911.

ASHAMED OF HER FACE

"I was ashamed of my face," writes Miss Pickard of North Carolina. "It was all full of pimples and scars, but after using D. D. D. Prescription for Eczema I can say that now there is no sign of that. Eczema and that was three years ago."

This is but one of thousands of cases in which D. D. D. has simply washed away the skin trouble. D. D. D. cleanses the skin of the germs of Eczema, Psoriasis and other serious skin diseases; stops the itch instantly, and when used with D. D. D. soap the cures seem to be permanent. Nothing like D. D. D. for the complexion.

CIRCUIT COURT

One Conviction For A Term In The Pen.

The grand jury has been busy with jail cases this week but has not yet returned any indictments.

In circuit court H. L. Oaks, charged with malicious cutting, was acquitted, the complaining witness having left the State.

The commonwealth failed to make out cases against Dolly Scott and Lucy Hammond, charged with keeping bawdy houses. It was shown that each lives alone and it takes two inmates to make a bawdy house. Jim Giles, unlawfully and wilfully detaining a colored child, was tried and given a sentence of ten years.

The L. & N. Railroad Co. was tried yesterday morning on a charge of maintaining a common nuisance. The Acme Mills cases will be called Monday.

Arvins Are Acquitted.

The jury that tried the case of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Arvin, charged with the desertion and criminal neglect of Arvin's child by a former wife, returned a verdict of not guilty Thursday, after being out thirty minutes. The case was hard fought, Southall & Son appearing for the defense and Commonwealth's Attorney Smith putting in vigorous pleas for the State. Arvin's young wife, at the time the child's condition was discovered, was only about 18 or 19 years old. Two children were sick and one died and the other, a boy about 9 years old, was terribly emaciated from chronic diarrhoea and fever when, through the intervention of neighbors, the city authorities investigated the case, the result being that the child was sent to an Orphans' Home and eventually recovered. The family were very poor and lacking in knowledge of the gravity of the case. Mrs. Arvin appeared in court with a babe in her arms, born since the child was sent away, and the jurors doubtless took a sympathetic view of all the surroundings and gave them the benefit of the doubt.

POINTS ABOUT PEOPLE.

BRECKINRIDGE—Mrs. Desna Breckinridge, of Lexington, one of the most brilliant women in Kentucky, will be here next week as a guest of the Civic Improvement League, and will deliver an address. Mrs. Breckinridge is a grand daughter of Henry Clay and her husband is editor of the Lexington Herald.

FICKEN—Hubert Ficken, another Cadiz man, has moved to this city with his family. He will be with Ficken and Adkins, the Main street barbers.

DUFFY—The Courier-Journal of one day this week contained an excellent picture of Hon. John C. Duffy, County Attorney of Christian county, one of the legal representatives of the school probers, with the following words under the picture: "J. C. Duffy, of Hodgenville." Such is fame!

CORBIN—

Charles Corbin, son of the millionaire founder of the Hardware Trust, Philip Corbin, of Mansfield, Mass., came forth from his long exile yesterday and married Mrs. Mona Habbitt. It was purely a love match, friends of the young couple say, but incidentally by presenting the marriage certificate to Judge of Probate Bernard F. Gaffney at New Britain, Corbin will henceforth receive the income from $150,000 instead of $75,000. The elder Corbin left several millions, but only $75,000 went to his spendthrift son, with another $75,000 set aside for him if he married and settled down before Jan. 1 of next year.

SHERMAN—The Taft forces have decided to renominate Sherman for vice president, if they succeed in landing control of the convention.

GOOCH—Gov. McCreary has appointed Capt. Wiley Dixon, of Henderson, inspector general of this State Guard, the position for which Capt. B. B. Gooch was an applicant. Capt. Gooch was tendered the assistant's place but did not accept it. He was at home for a day or two this week.

TICHENOR—Interesting gossip is going the rounds that Dr. B. F. Tichenor, now state senator, is to be made superintendent of the Eastern Kentucky asylum at Lexington, and that Senator J. R. Catlett will be the state printer, a berth now held by George A. Lewis.

GARDINER—Dr. Thos. W. Gardiner, one of the Republican members of the State Board of Control, was re-appointed by Gov. McCreary this week. The other Republican, Col. Albert Scott, was recently succeeded by Mr. Thos. A. Hall. Dr. Gardiner as superintendent and as member of the Board of Control has been associated with asylum work for nearly 20 years and the Governor has acted wisely in retaining his valuable services.

SCHMIDT—Ed J. Schmidt, the new city assessor, who will begin the annual assessment April 1st, is making preparations to start work promptly. The law requires the list to be made by the second week in May and the duties are growing heavier every year.

Not in These Days of Politics. Patient old Job, it may be remembered, even foretold the coming of a day when "all the beasts of the field shall be at peace."—Chicago Tribune

Girls

Read About These Three Girls. How Sick They Were and How Their Health Was Restored by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Appleton, Wis.—"I take pleasure in writing you an account of my sickness. I told a friend of mine how I felt and she said I had female trouble and advised me to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as she had taken it herself for the same trouble with wonderful results. I had been sick for two years and overworked myself, and had such bad feelings every month that I could hardly walk for pain. I was very nervous and easily tired out and could not sleep nights. I had dizzy spells, and pimples came on my face. But I have taken your Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it has restored my health. I think it is the best medicine in existence."—Miss Cecelia M. Bauer, 1161 Lawrence St., Appleton, Wis.

A SCHOOL TEACHER'S GRATITUDE:

Geneva, Iowa.—"I have been teaching school for some years and I have neglected my health because I was too busy with my work to attend to myself properly. I suffered greatly every month and was on the verge of a nervous breakdown."

"I wrote to you about my condition and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and the Blood Purifier as you recommended. These remedies have done wonders for me and I can highly and widely recommend them to every suffering woman."—Miss Minnie Shaver, R. F. D. No. 1, Geneva, Iowa, c/o Sam Erickson.

A COLORADO GIRL'S CASE:

Montrose, Col.—"I was troubled very much with irregular periods. Sometimes two months would elapse. I suffered severe headache, was weak and nervous, could eat scarcely anything."

"I took both Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier and the result was wonderful. I feel like another person."

"I think your remedies are the best on earth and cannot express my thankfulness to you for what they have done to me. I help my neighbors when they are sick, and I shall always recommend your medicines."—Miss Ella McCandless, Montrose, Col.

Is it not reasonable to suppose that a medicine that did so much for these girls will benefit any other girl who is suffering with the same troubles?

Does it not seem the only sensible thing to give such a medicine at least a trial? You may be sure that it can do you no harm, and there are lots of proof that it will do you much good.

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No one sick with woman's ailments does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine, made from roots and herbs, it has restored so many suffering women to health.

Write to LYDIA E. PINKHAM MEDICINE CO. (CONFIDENTIAL) LYNN, MASS., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

BRONZE MEDALS

Awarded to 25 or 30 Hopkinsville Marksmen.

Bronze medals won by Hopkinsville soldier boys in the shooting contests at Camp O'Rell last summer have been received by the 25 or 30 members of Company D. who won them. They were given to those who made 98 points out of a possible 150. The medals are about 2½ inches long and a half inch wide and are made in the form of pins, with the single word "Marksmen" on the bronze.

Mr. John H. Bell has returned from the eastern market.

BELOVED WOMAN.

Called To Her Reward In A Better World.

Mrs. Caroline E. Ducker, the venerable mother of Mr. Chas. W. Ducker, with whom she made her home, died at an early hour Thursday morning. She was taken ill with asthma only a week before and pneumonia followed, causing her death. Mrs. Ducker was a daughter of Charles and Charlotte Lakin, pioneer settlers, and was born in Hopkinsville in 1830. She was married when 18 years of age to John C. Ducker and they lived here for five years and then moved to Palaski, Tenn. Mr. Ducker died there and his widow returned to Hopkinsville in 1865 and had lived at the home on Ninth street for 47 years.

Two sons survive her, C. W. Ducker, of Hopkinsville, and Alex. Ducker, of Louisville. The former's wife died a number of years ago leaving five small sons and their grandmother raised them and several are successful business men. The oldest of the family, John Ducker, died only a few weeks ago.

During almost the whole of her long and useful life Mrs. Ducker was a devout and exemplary member of the Methodist Church and her beautiful christian character was a shining example to all who came within the scope of her influence.

She was a charter member of the Foreign Mission Society, organized in 1881, and its treasurer for more than 25 years and was honorary treasurer at the time of her death.

The funeral service was held yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the Methodist church by her pastor Rev. A. R. Kasey. Interment in Riverside Cemetery.

LEVY'S BLUFF.

Paducah Fellow Wants Other
Teams To Work For Him
For Fifty Dollars A Game.

A good line of talk is being indulged in by Mr. Levy, manager of the Paducah Baseball Association, and he is working the Paducah papers to a fare you well for free advertising. Levy says that unless the smaller towns in the "Kitty League" will agree to come to Paducah and Cairo for fifty dollars a game and let the home team (meaning Levy) have the rest of the gate receipts that he, Levy, will see to it that there is no Kitty League, because without Cairo and Paducah there can be no league. Ever since Levy entered the baseball game he has been a disturber and has sought to disorganize baseball without putting up any big coin himself. All that we ever heard of him doing was to go around and get the business men of his town to put up $500 last year when the Paducah team went broke. If Levy could get the visiting teams to work for him, as he wants them to, at fifty dollars a game, he could pay all his salary expenses in four Sundays.

The visiting team, especially a pennant winner like Fulton, does as much, or more, than the home team to draw the crowds at Paducah. This being the case we are entitled to an equal division of gate receipts. No one since the league was organized ever objected to this equitable arrangement until Levy came into league affairs. As he is now devoting his time to baseball, having quit his job on the road, he figured out that if he could "put over" this scheme and at the same time get the liberal merchants of Paducah to contribute $2,000 it would be like finding pay ore. It would put money in Levy's pocket but would break Hopkinsville, Henderson and Clarksville. We never did believe in the tail wag-

Fit Smith is confined in the jail at Tickville. He has bought himself a bottle of patent medicine, and hopes to be able to be out in a few days.

Dock Hocks, during his leisure moments yesterday, was wondering what Daniel Boone done for chewing tobacco.

Washington's birthday was observed at the postoffice Thursday by everybody telling the truth. The day passed off quietly with very few words.

Frisby Hancock took down his long-range musket the other morning and fired at random. After passing through the Wild Onion schoolhouse the bullet was stopped in the road two miles beyond Rye Straw by the Deputy Constable.

Tobe Moseley says rabbits will never amount to anything as long as they change locations so often.

Raz Barlow has ordered himself a derby from Chicago. It is expected to arrive at Tickville tomorrow, and will be brought in by the Mail Carrier on his next trip. Until the new one arrives Raz will continue to wear his old one.

Miss Hostetter Hocks has gone to the Dog Hill Graveyard to get "atmosphere" for a serious article she is preparing to write on George Washington. It will be read to the Wild Onion school children. She will read it aloud.

The Mail Carrier came in during the snow storm Wednesday. He looked considerably older, his whiskers being white with snow.

The editor of the Tickville Tidings has ordered a lot of commas and periods, as a good many of his subscribers objected to reading the whole paper without stopping.

Sim Flinders went to hear the Hog Ford Preacher last Sunday. Sim is a strong Methodist but thought he would go over to see if the Baptists had found any new arguments as to why their religion is the best.

Since he has read an article about what terrible things flies are, Tobe Moseley has decided not to let a one come on his premises next summer.

Stim Pickens has secured the job of putting wood in the furnace at the saw mill on upper Gander Creek. Nothing but fire wood is sawed there and Slim says it keeps him busy putting it in the furnace as fast as it is sawed.

ging the dog and if Paducah refuses to abide by the decision of two thirds of the clubs in the league, then we had better begin to look around for another town more liberal and fair to take her place. Dyersburg, Tenn., we understand would like to put in a team, besides there are others.

One thing is certain, we are going to have "Kitty League" baseball and no action Levy can take will break up the league.—Fulton Leader.

The Excelsior Fiddling Band continues to persecute its enemies by serenading them from ambush. Yesterday Raz Barlow was seen cultivating the acquaintance of Isaac Hellwanger's dawg. Raz is leader of the band and makes friends wherever he goes—with the dogs.

Sidney Hocks told it at the blacksmith shop yesterday that Poke Earley had told him that his wife had heard while over at Luke Mathews's that Luke's wife had heard that Isaac Hellwanger was telling it around among his neighbors that Jefferson Potlocks and his wife had a falling out and a family racket a few nights ago. Those who have mentioned it don't want anything further said about it.

The photographer that has set up for business at Bounding Billows took a picture of the Two Twins of the Calf Ribs neighborhood Tuesday morning. To save money the Twins had only one of themselves made, instructing their friends to merely look at it twice when they wanted to see both of them.

Wash Hocks has discovered a new sink hole on his farm. He will furnish it with a chair and use it as a hiding place from insurance agents and officers.

Gimlet Creek was out of its banks yesterday, and covered a considerable portion of Poke Easley's farm. Some damage will be the result, and he will bring suit if he can find out who is to blame.

The postmaster has warned Cricket Hicks that the government is kicking on account of his moving from one place to another so much, and causing his mail to be forwarded. They say they lose several cents on every letter written to Cricket.

Sidney Hocks has traded a calf for a cider mill, and until the apple season opens he will use it to crack hickory nuts.

Ellick Hellwanger is one of the shrewdest hunters since the days of Davy Crockett. He spends most of his time sitting on the rail fence running alongside the road just east of Hogwallow. He sits with his back to the road and his gun across his lap. From all appearances he is paying no attention to things passing along the road, but the minute a rabbit comes down the road he turns around right suddenly and shoots it.

McINNIS-BACHMAN

Christian County Bell Weds
Mississippi Mayor.

The Tennessean of Thursday contained this notice of the marriage of a pretty Christian county girl:

"Miss Clara Mai Bachman of Newstead, Ky., and Hon. Frank S. McInnis of Moss Point, Miss., were quietly married last night at 9 o'clock at the Hotel Tulane. Rev. W. S. Barr, of the Cottage Presbyterian church performed the ceremony. Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. McInnis left for Mobile, Ala., before going to their home at Moss Point.

The bride is one of Kentucky's most attractive and accomplished young women, possessing many rare qualities. Mr. McInnis is widely known in Tennessee, having received the greater part of his education at the Southwestern University, Clarksville, and the law school at Lebanon, and now bears the distinction of being the youngest mayor in Mississippi, serving as mayor of Moss Point. He is one of the most popular and brilliant young lawyers of his state."

The bride is a daughter of Mrs. J. W. Riley and one of the county's prettiest and most popular girls. She first met her future husband when they attended the same school in Clarksville. Mr. McInnis is in every respect a fine young man, able, ambitious and of rapidly increasing prominence in his chosen profession.

Mallory-McKinney.

Hon. Jas. B. Mallory, Commonwealth's Attorney of the Elkton district, and Miss Bonnie McKinney, a daughter of Dr. A. T. McKinney, of Todd county, were married Wednesday. They are spending their honeymoon in Florida.

Nothing Doing.

Detroit, Mich., Mar. 1.—United States District Judge Angell, presiding at the trial of the so-called bathtub trust, charged with conspiracy in restraint of trade, ordered the acquittal of seven of the defendants. Two other defendants would have been acquitted, but they signified their willingness to see the case through.

Bolt From Sky.

Dalton, Ky., March 1.—A tenant house on Walter Larkin's farm in the Bend, occupied by Mr. Frank McDowell, was struck by lightning Sunday night. The house was set on fire and the family stunned.

Mr. McDowell was able to summons help and the fire was put out before great damage had been done.

Mr. Thomas Kimmons left yesterday after a visit to his brother, Will Kimmons.

PETE LACY

Won T. L. Metcalfe's Automobile Contest By 15,000.

Herschel Lacy, known as "Pete" Lacy, a young man connected with Henry T. Hurt's livery stable, won the automobile in the contest inaugurated by T. L. Metcalfe last fall. The final count was made at the First National Bank Thursday evening and stood as follows:

Herschel Lacy 628 608
Thos. L. Morrow 613,060

Lacy's majority 15,548
The judges were Geo. D. Treville, Thos. W. Long and J. T. Wall.

The first count showed Mr. Morrow a winner by 10,000 votes, but upon a recount an error of 25,000 was found in Mr. Lacy's favor.

The next highest vote was that of Mrs. Mary Thomas, 110,000. The total of votes exceeded 1,500,000. The contest was a big success.

Miss Mollie Shanklin, of Hopkinsville, is visiting relatives in this community.

Superintendent Johnson, of Elkton, visited the school here Friday.

Mrs. Calvin Terry returned to Glasgow this week, after a visit of some time with relatives near here.

Mr. Mills E. Tandy, and little son, Robert Mills, have returned from a week's visit with Mrs. Tandy's mother, Mrs. Potter, of Nashville.

The editorial that appeared in a recent issue of the Kentuckian to the effect that Germantown, was about the only town in the state without officers, recalls that Fairview is most the same way. Last fall the town trustees refused to call an election for a new board, claiming that it was not the time, but later on found out that an election should have been held, and Judge Duffy, of Elkton, appointed a board to serve till the next election. In the meanwhile a majority of the tax-payers refuse to pay their taxes, and only twenty-six dollars was collected. Some threatened to file an injunction against the trustees to keep them from collecting said tax, and here the matter rests, for no more taxes have been collected, nor can they get any one to collect them.

UNLUCKY NUMBER

Of Interments in Riverside
Cemetery Last Month.

Sexton J. T. Johnson, of Riverside Cemetery, had a busy month last month, digging thirteen graves during the month, two for children and eleven for adults. This was the largest single month's business ever done. The increasing number of burials is due not to any greater mortality in Hopkinsville but rather to the fact that a great many country people are buying lots in the cemetery.

IN DANGER FROM LIGHTNING

Observatories on lofty mountains often struck if they are built in the snow.

One of the greatest dangers to mountain observatories is from lightning. This was illustrated last year, when the observatory on the summit of Mont Blanc was struck; one man was injured so badly that he has since died.

The reasons for this danger are evident. The ground is frozen and snow is a bad conductor of electricity. This particular building is of wood, buried in the snow. The roof was covered with copper plates, but the copper is not to be blamed as the building was struck by lightning in 1909 while building and before the copper was put on.

Another Mont Blanc observatory, built in the snow, was struck a few years ago, with the result that nails were forged together. This was in spite of a lightning rod supplied with a wire cable to a rock 300 yards away.

In spite of additional lightning rods, the shocks continued. On one occasion a visiting guide reported that for two hours and a half he watched ribbons of fire passing horizontally across one of the rooms.

Not far from these is another observatory that in 13 years has never been touched by lightning. Instead of being built in the snow, it rests directly on the rock. Its copper roof and even the stovepipe are connected with the lightning rods, from which conductors lead down into the rocks and are fastened to them.

RADIUM IS COMMON CURE

Its Application, Chiefly by Drinking and Inhalation, an Established Usage in Germany.

Application of radium, chiefly by drinking and inhalations, has now become quite an established usage in most of the German cure stations. Dr. Frumusan, who has visited most of them, has likewise become firmly convinced of the efficaciousness of the radium cure through inhalations, and has gone to considerable expense to set up an installation in Paris. The most effective way of applying the cure is by means of inhalations of radium emanations. For this purpose a comfortable room has been especially prepared. The doors and windows have been thoroughly padded and made almost hermetically tight. Accommodation is provided for eight or ten patients, who may take the cure simultaneously. The radium emanation is provided by a "vollinhalatorium," a device which is already popular and widely used in Germany. The "vollinhalatorium" is a sort of upright tube, standing a yard or more high, at the bottom of which the radium is placed. Special currents of air are forced up through the tube and convey the emanations of radium through the room with the air, which is itself constantly renewed with a special supply of oxygen.

HARD TO BELIEVE.

"Think of it, my dear," remarked Mrs. Emily Streat, looking up from the morning paper she had cabbaged at the breakfast table, "just think of it! This paper says that there are three thousand millions of dollars in circulation in this country!"

"Is that so," responded Mr. Streat, as cheerfully as possible under the circumstances. "Well, well! Judging from the difficulty I always experience in getting you to give me ten cents more than carfare every morning, I thought there couldn't be more than $3.50 in the whole world."

Conversation languished a good bit after that.

MELBA AS A WHISTLER.

Mme. Melba is to have her portrait hung in the national gallery of her native Melbourne. And another native of Melbourne remembers that Mme. Melba, when a pupil at the Ladies' Presbyterian college, was already famous among her fellow pupils—as a whistler. She could stick two fingers into one corner of her mouth and whistle as long and as loudly as the most accomplished lark. We may be thankful that her early ambitions were shunted.

MARY'S SOLITAIRE

By Effie Stevens

(Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press)

Moved by a sudden impulse, Mary Owen turned her little electric motor into the driveway leading to her old home.

She had not entered the house since her uncle's death, two years before, and the sight of it brought back memories.

"I—I—thought I had forgotten," she half sobbed, as she mechanically brought the car to a halt.

In a daze she ascended the front steps.

"How silly I am," she thought, as she realized that her hand was reaching for the doorknob. "Of course it's locked. Nobody lives here."

She tried the knob. To her astonishment it yielded to her touch.

"Well, I've got to go in and see that everything is all right," she decided, aroused from her gloomy thoughts. "I suppose Cousin Ned forgot to fasten it when he came over after that book I wanted yesterday."

Mary stepped across the threshold without the least sensation of fear, for she laid the unlocked door entirely to the carelessness of her young relative.

The first room she entered was the large, low-ceilinged parlor. Once more sad memories overwhelmed her as she gazed about the familiar room with its shrouded furniture, shuttered windows and general air of neglect.

It was here that her greatest happiness and her bitterest sorrow had come to her. For Albert Watson had proposed to her in this room, and it was here they had so quickly had their dreadful quarrel. That was two years before, and she had not seen or heard from him since.

How paltry the object of their quarrel seemed to her now. She had given up her whole life's hope of happiness for a mean little suspicion. And all because of a diamond ring.

Albert had produced the ring immediately after being accepted and there in lay the seed of the whole trouble.

It had been a shock to Mary's pride to learn that he had been so sure of her that he had come to her provided with an engagement ring.

This, however, had been quickly superseded by shock number two, when the ring proved to be too large.

She had tried to think that this was because Albert had had no measure and had doubtless been unable to carry the correct size by eye, but this had not satisfied her.

When she was alone she had examined the ring and had found several tiny scratches upon the surface of the gold-band, which proved to her mind that the ring had been worn.

When Albert had next visited her she had asked him if the ring was a heirloom. He had replied with a decided negative, but his manner had been plainly embarrassed.

The matter had dropped until she had overheard Florence Rogers, a girl of her acquaintance, remark that "Mary Owen needn't feel smart over her engagement to Albert Watson, for others might have had him if they'd wanted him."

With a sinking heart Mary had remembered that at one time Albert had paid Florence considerable attention. Florence had worn a diamond ring, too.

The suspicion that she had not been Albert's first choice had nearly broken Mary's heart.

"But I'll forgive him if he'll only own up," she had told herself repeatedly during the long, sleepless night that passed before she had the chance to confront Albert with her charge.

But Albert had stubbornly refused to explain matters.

Mary had immediately removed her ring, and, overcome by childish anger, had thrown it upon the floor, declaring their engagement at an end, after which she had dramatically flounced out of the room.

The following day Albert had come to her begging her to trust him and reconsider her hasty decision. When she had refused to do this, Albert had angrily demanded back his ring. Mary had twitted him with having already taken it, since she had been unable to find it after his departure the previous day, while he charged her with purposely retaining it.

They had parted in bitter anger. Business had taken Albert from the town, while Mary had gone abroad soon after her uncle's death.

Suddenly Mary found herself looking down at the floor. "It fell here by this table, but might have rolled in any direction," she said half aloud. "I never really thought Albert took it."

She bent down and scanned the floor intently. Then she straightened up with a little laugh. How silly it was for her to expect to find that ring. There had been plenty of people about before her uncle's death—and after—who might have picked it up.

All at once Mary was startled by the sound of footsteps in the hall outside. She remembered the unlocked door, and her heart began to beat furiously. For the first time in her life she was thoroughly frightened.

Instinctively she looked about for some place of concealment. There was no chance of escaping, for the only door was the one opening into the hall, while the windows were securely nailed down.

Panic-stricken, Mary glided behind a couch near which she had been standing, and crouched low.

The man—from the heaviness of the footsteps she knew it was a man, though she dared not look to see for fear of revealing her presence to him—entered the room, and began walking to and fro, moving the furniture as if searching for something.

Mary repressed a cry of fear when he finally approached the couch. But he did not attempt to move the heavy piece of furniture.

Next she heard a peculiar sound, and, flattening herself upon the floor, she took a surreptitious peep from beneath the couch, running the risk of immediate discovery, for the man was on his hands and knees not far from the couch; his face, fortunately, was turned from her.

"He must be insane," Mary thought wildly, as she shrank back instinctively. "A thief would never act like that."

In the act of drawing back, her eyes caught a glimpse of a gleaming object tucked up close against the leg of the couch where it had lain undiscovered through many perfunctory sweepings. Plainly others beside the strange man had not taken the trouble to move the couch.

Impulsively Mary stretched forth her hand and grasped the tiny object. Instantly a man's strong fingers closed about her wrist and she felt herself growing faint with terror. "Who are you and what are you doing here?" the man demanded sternly.

Mary's heart gave a violent bound. She rose from her cramped position and came forth meekly, a rumped, dust-covered object.

"Mary!" the man gasped incredulously. Then he gathered her to him in a close embrace.

"Here's your ring, Albert," Mary murmured several minutes later. "You were searching for it, weren't you?"

"That wretched ring," Albert burst forth vehemently. "If it hadn't been for that and my abominable pride we might have been happy long ago. You see, Fred Hartwood was in straits, and to help him out I bought the ring from him. It was a much nicer one than I could have afforded to buy new for you, and I never thought you would know the difference. When you developed such a talent for deduction my pride wouldn't let me admit that it was second-hand. Of course I knew you didn't keep the ring knowingly, though I was brute enough to say so. I have only been back home a week. Yesterday I happened to meet your cousin. He told me he had just been here, and I borrowed the key, wishing to visit the spot where we had been so happy. When I entered the room I was overcome by a feeling that the ring was still here. I hated the very thought of it, but I could not resist the impulse to search for it."

"I should have thought you would have heard me when I entered the house," Mary remarked.

"Oh, that's easily explained," Albert laughed. "When I opened the door I was greeted by a strong rush of air, and went upstairs to see where it came from. I found that Ned had left one of the attic windows wide open, and I had some difficulty in shutting it. I was probably too much engaged in my task to heed any noise you may have made. But what shall we do with the ring, now it is found, little girl?"

Mary held up a white finger invitingly. "It will fit better now," she said demurely. "My hands are ever so much plumper."

"Shows how much you've pined over my loss," Albert chuckled. "But come, we ought to be going. It's growing late."

In a daze of happiness Mary led the way to the waiting car. After helping her in Albert took the driver's seat, as a matter of course.

When they had nearly reached the home of the aunt with whom Mary was staying, Mary suddenly asked, "But how did you get out to the old place, Albert? You surely did not walk?"

Albert stared at her blankly for a moment. Then he stammered sheepishly: "I—I—came in a motor car, too. But I forgot all about it from the moment I found you."

Elysium in South Seas.

I. Anderson, mate of the schooner Albert Meyer, is going to the Friendly Islands to spend the rest of his days in the sunlight valleys of fair Vavau.

The Albert Meyer returned recently from the South seas, and the tropics have been calling Anderson ever since he left there. In Vavau Anderson found what he describes as a "genuine paradise, by jimmies."

"The natives," he says, "have nothing to do but catch fish, gather fruit, sing and grow fat."

"The women are beautiful, but a trifle heavy. They weigh 250 to 400 pounds. You can marry there at short notice, and divorces are to be had for the asking. There is no alimony."

"I am going here to end my days. I do not expect to be a king, but if I can't get a chief's job within a year I will go back to sea."

"When a white man goes to one of the Friendly Islands to live he has to put up $50 with the government. If he lives a decent, law-abiding life, his money is returned at the end of two years. If he makes trouble the $50 is forfeited and he is deported. I've worked long enough. I'm going to the South seas to live."—Philadelphia Press.

MINERS QUIT WORK IN ENGLAND

The Government Has Taken Up
The Cause Of The Men

STRIKERS ARE DETERMINED

They Will Never Give In Until a Satisfactory Agreement Has Been Reached.

London, Mar. 1.—Settlement of the threatened coal strike is yet afar off. The government has not been able to induce all the coal owners to agree to the demand for a minimum wage made by the miners, but Premier Asquith declared to-night that if the principle of a minimum wage was not obtained by agreement it would be by other means.

Fully 800,000 miners have already laid down their tools, and will not pick them up again until an agreement satisfactory to the miners' federation is reached. The men have the government behind them and feel that victory has been won.

J. M. RENSHAW & SON.

AT FRANKFORT.

Liquor interests throughout the state tasted defeat again in the House late this afternoon when the bill of E. B. Thompson, Republican representative of Rockcastle county, looking to the repeal of the law prohibiting the shipment of liquor into "Dry" territory, was killed by the vote of 47 to 39.

A bill limiting the hours of employment of female workers in Kentucky to ten hours daily was passed unanimously by the senate.

Senator Claude Thomas on the floor of the senate charged that representatives of the East Tennessee Telephone Company had resorted to unfair tactics in an effort to defeat his bill.

The Finn railroad bill, which proposed enlarging the powers of the state railroad commission, was killed in the House.

Gov. McCreary signed the county unit bill Thursday.

When the Bagby bill, to protect the mussel shell industry in the Ohio river, came up today, Senator Graham offered an amendment to include "grub worms" along with mussel shells. He said unless the "grub worms" were protected it would be but a little while until the boys of the state would have no fish bait. The amendment was defeated. The bill passed by 16 to 12.

The Senate has passed the bill creating a codes commission of three members to prepare amendments to the civil codes and report to the next Legislature.

The Senate also passed bills regulating the admission of attorneys to the bar, regulating the introduction of expert testimony in civil and criminal cases, relating to the advancement of cases for hearing in the Court of Appeals, reducing the number of peremptory challenges allowed defendants to ten in felony cases and three in misdemeanor cases, regulating the filing of bills of exception, repealing what is known as "the practice act" of 1902.

Mr. Jno. P. Thomas will take the road to-day for his next selling season.

DAVIE TELLS THE DETAILS

Of The Whipping He Was Given
At Kennedy Tuesday Night.

There have been no new developments in the Kennedy whipping case. Judge Knight and Deputy Sheriff Smith who went to the scene Wednesday to investigate, gained but little information. The whipping of the negro Will Davie was due to the bad feeling growing out of the murder of Lee Jenkins by Tom Slaughter, who later shot himself in the throat while running with a pistol in his hand.

Gus Evans and Davie were both taken from their homes at Kennedy about midnight for the purpose of whipping them. But Evans escaped from his captors and the whipping in store for him. He was not wounded by shots fired after him as he ran off. Davie was whipped severely.

County Judge Knight, Sheriff Johnson and Deputy Sheriff Smith visited Kennedy in person, returning Wednesday afternoon and bringing Davie with them. Evans is said to be in Clarksville, Tenn. Davie went before the grand jury Wednesday afternoon.

Davie says the mob went to Evans' house first and that it was after they had him in custody and were on their way to his (Davie's) house that

Evans escaped. Davie says he was made to get up and in his bare feet and night clothes he was taken a distance of nearly two miles and tied up to a tree and whipped with something he thinks was a broad strap. He says they charged him with talking too much about the killing of Jenkins and ordered him to leave the country, which he agreed to do. After releasing him they told him to run, which he did. He said the men were masked, and he replied evasively when asked if he could identify any of them. He is being kept in the jail tonight.

After return it said he did not fear any further trouble. He made a full investigation while at Kennedy but found nothing to justify further fears and says the leading citizens there agree with him in this.

SUMMERS-BUTLER
Popular Couple Have a Surprise
Wedding in Louisville.

Mr. William C. Summers and Miss Mary Virginia Butler, both of this county, were married at Seelbach's Hotel, Louisville, Wednesday evening at five o'clock, by Rev. W. G. Foote, of the Methodist church. Mr. and Mrs. Summers returned home Thursday night.

The groom is the only son of the late Mr. J. S. Summers and is one of the county's wealthiest and most substantial and popular young planters. His pretty bride is one of the loveliest and most attractive young ladies in the county, who has made her home with her sister, Mrs. J. P. Myers. She was one of the winners in a Kentuckian popularity contest, a few years ago and is a social favorite in the city as well as in the country. The plans of the young people have not been announced, but they will probably live on the groom's farm in the Longview neighborhood.

Closed March 1.
The Kentuckian's special clubbing proposition with the daily Courier-Journal expired by limitation Feb. 29. The old clubbing rate of $7.40 has been restored.

Egg Laying Record.

J. W. Lovell, engineer at the courthouse, has a White Pekin duck that is establishing a remarkable laying record for the winter season. During the past week she has averaged one egg a day, while on Wednesday and Friday she laid two eggs each. Mr. Lovell is very proud of the duck, which he considers a most industrious bird.—Nashville Banner.

First Killing.
The first serious accident on the Cadiz railroad, during its ten years of existence, occurred last Thursday night was a week ago, about seven o'clock, when Dock Jones, one of the negro brakemen, was run over and instantly killed and his body badly mangled.—Record.

Wets Win Out.
The court of appeals has upheld the validity of the local option election by which Nicholasville went wet by 65 votes.

Purely Personal

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. McReynolds, Mrs. W. A. Radford, Miss Bettie Ware, Miss Naomi Johnson and Mr. John Stites, of Hopkinsville, have returned home from Louisville.

Ernest Stone has resigned his position at Miller's drug store to accept a similar position at Hopkinsville. Mr. Stone and wife left for Hopkinsville Sunday.—Pembroke Journal.

Miss Louise Wood is spending the week-end with relatives and friends in Clarksville.

Mr. T. M. Jones and Misses Mary and Louise Jones have returned from New York.

Miss Fannie Spiceland, of Cadiz, returned home yesterday, after a week's visit to Mrs. Will Kimmons.

Mr. T. M. Jones has returned from New York, where he spent some time selecting spring goods.

Councilman W. A. P'Pool has returned from a visit of several weeks to Florida.
